

New York Now Largest City; 7,820,676 in the Territory Within 19 Miles of City Hall

Corresponding Area of London Contains a Population of 7,476,168—Some Interesting Comparisons.

A comparison of the population of the metropolitan areas of New York City and London has recently been completed by Dr. Laidlaw, Executive Secretary of the New York City 1920 Census Committee.

He found the population of our Metropolitan District, including an area with a radius of nineteen miles from the City Hall, on Jan. 1, 1920, was 7,820,676. The population of a similar territory in London's district on June 19, 1921, was 7,476,168. This, therefore, gives the New York section 344,608 more inhabitants than the London territory, although the latter had an advantage of eighteen months in which to increase.

For purposes of comparison, Dr. Laidlaw took the New York section circling out nineteen miles from the City Hall, while he chose the London suburban area, which is irregular in outline but extends as far in some directions as nineteen miles from Charing Cross.

Greater London includes not only London County, over which the London County Council has legislative and administrative authority such as the New York Board of Aldermen and Board of Estimate exercise within the limits of New York City, but it also includes an outer ring in which the London metropolitan police have specified powers and duties.

"When the New York Port Authority has developed its functions," says Dr. Laidlaw, "it may be natural to include all the area of its operations when comparing municipal London and neighborhood with municipal New York and neighborhood. Meantime in this comparison I use 'largest New York' to designate a circle centered at City Hall, whose radius reaches Tot-tenville, Staten Island, and whose circumference bounds, as suburban area, part of Westchester County and Nassau County on the north and east, and the part of New Jersey which has Newark, Jersey City and other large population centres, immediately adjacent to New York."

For convenience of comparison, Dr. Laidlaw has called suburban New York and suburban New Jersey "the outer ring" of Greater New York. The tables show that Greater London, meaning London County and the "outer ring," increased in the thirty years between 1891 and 1921 by 1,844,802 persons, while "Largest New York" increased in the ten years from 1900 to 1910 by 1,879,546. The County of London has decreased at each census since 1801. Its population was passed by the population of New York on July 4, 1908. For nearly fourteen years legal and municipal New York has been larger than legal and municipal London.

The population of "Largest New York" on Jan. 1, 1920, was 7,820,676, while that of Greater London on June 19, 1921, was 7,476,168. The population of New York on Jan. 1, 1920, was 5,620,048, and that of London County was 4,483,249. The population of the "outer ring" of New York on Jan. 1, 1920, was 2,200,000, and that of the "outer ring" of London County was 2,992,919 on June 19, 1921.

Wears Gown in Which Her Mother Was Married in Same Church.

Many New Yorkers went to Orange, N. J., yesterday to attend the marriage of Miss Katharine Schermerhorn Oliver, daughter of Mrs. M. Schermerhorn Oliver, to Rudolph Stanley-Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stanley-Brown of Kew Gardens, L. I., and grandson of President Garfield. The wedding took place on the same date, at the same hour and in the same church as that of the bride's mother, and the same wedding gown was used for both occasions. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock in Grace Episcopal Church by Bishop Lloyd of New York, the Rev. John Franklin Carter of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and the Rev. Charles T. Walkley of Orange. Afterward there was a reception at Mrs. Oliver's home.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Norris S. Oliver, and attended by Miss Katrina Stephenson. Francis Crandall of Cleveland was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley-Brown will sail Saturday for France. On their return they will live in Cleveland.

OLYPHANT-POLHEMUS.

In the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church yesterday at 4.30 P. M., was held the wedding of Miss Mary Barlow Polhemus, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Polhemus, to Murray Olyphant, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Murray Olyphant of Englewood, N. J. The ceremony was performed by Dean Howard Chandler Robbins, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Henry Martin Polhemus. She was attended by Mrs. Rodman Glider. C. Ames Brooks served as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Olyphant will live in this city.

GILLET-GWYNNE.

Mrs. Ida M. Gwynne of No. 64 East 66th Street was married to Col. Ransom E. Gillett, Vice President and General Counsel of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Abraham Wakeman in Hudson Falls, N. Y.

The ceremony was performed by Capt. Frank Hamsom, Chaplain of the 108th Infantry, who served with Col. Gillett in France. Col. Walter

AGED BROOKLYN MAN IS REPORTED MISSING.

Jeremiah H. Morris, eighty-two, is missing from his home, No. 2504 Albemarle Road, Brooklyn. To-day his son Joseph asked police to search for him. Mr. Morris is five feet 10 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, is blue-eyed and has gray hair and moustache. The index finger of his left hand is missing. When he left home he wore a dark suit. His jewelry consisted of a gold watch, inscribed with his name, a diamond ring and a 14th Regiment medal.

GIUSEPPE VERDI CREW JOYOUS OVER "VICTORY"

Best Duca d'Abruzzi to Port, Despite "Handicap."

Sailors on the Giuseppe Verdi, which arrived on this morning were jubilant over the fact that their ship beat the Duca d'Abruzzi by two hours and eighteen minutes "in spite of a handicap." They said the Duca d'Abruzzi left Messina twenty minutes before they left Genoa, and that the Verdi's route was sixty miles longer. It was not an official race, but the Verdi seamen are claiming a victory anyway.

The Verdi reported sighting a school of at least 150 whales heading north from the Azores.

The DUO-ART PIANO

Surely a piano should grace the home of every one of June's Brides this year. What a gift, this glorified piano—the Duo-Art!

Into the graceful artistic confines of a beautiful modern pianoforte, scores of artists have breathed the finesse and grandeur of their art. The happy possessor of a Duo-Art may summon the immortal Paderewski to play Chopin; she may take a lesson in style or interpretation from Josef Hofmann. She may entertain her guests with the best of music, gloriously played. Does she bid her Duo-Art play dance music, they may waltz or Fox-Trot to the most delightful numbers, full of color and perfect in rhythm.

Fortunate indeed is the girl who, when she arrives at one of life's milestones, finds that someone who understands and loves her has given her a Duo-Art Piano!
